Coffee and Tobacco Famine On Other Side

A coffee and tobacco famine has struck Koolau, on the other side of this island. Most of the Chinese country stores are turning away applicants for the stimulating drug and soothing smoke. These small dealers have run out of stock and are, owing to alleged hard times and slow paying customers, neglecting to renew supplies from the wholesale houses. Coffee and tobacco are not the only necessities which cannot be secured; condensed milk is scarce for the same reason. One store was found, usually well supplied, where nothing was for sale but tinned salmon, corned beef, candles, calico and axle grease. It was even out of soap.

Prices of things usually cheaper in the country than in the city have risen in this district in the last few weeks. Eggs are selling eight for a quarter where they sold eleven for the same amount but a short while back; they sell seven for a quarter in town. Watermelons at only decent proportions are quoted at $1.50 each; those the size of a coconut are fetching half a dollar. Tinned goods, as usual, are sold at five cents premium per tin, "for freight," say the wily Chinese; as if it cost five cents per tin to ship sardines seventy-five miles from Honolulu. An enterprising Hawaiian could make a good living selling household goods at civilized prices on the other side of the island. Chinese, however, monopolize the trade. The only cheap articles to windward at present are fish and matches; for some reason matches have not gone up; fish costs but the labor of getting; seven hundred, including fifteen varieties, were taken at one haul off Lale one day last week.

Dangerous Barb Wire On Windward Oahu

Strenuous complaints are being made by owners of horses on the windward side of this island against the existence from Lale to the Mormon settlement of barb wire on the fences. In some places as many as six rows of the wicked looking wire is stretched; this dangerous fencing is directly on the Government road and, in the event of a runaway making for the fence, horrible injuries or a fearful death is threatened. On Saturday night a man returning to Hauula from the Mormon settlement, riding a horse which became unmanageable, was thrown, his clothes and his horse, tearing his flesh in shreds on the wire pricklers. A few years ago the law against barb wire on the road was rigidly enforced in a case at Makao, near Hauula. The probabilities are that, drawn to the attention of the proper authorities, the law will be enforced indiscriminately in the present instance. Barb wire on a rotten fence is cheaper than building a new fence.

Surf Riders Ducked At Moana Beach

Yesterday was an ideal day for surfing at Waikiki. The heavy combers pounded the beach at the Moana Hotel like field artillery. The lovers of Hawaii's great sport were not slow to realize the possibilities of the day. Several parties went out from the Moana beach. One party, composed of Acting Governor Atkinson, Prince and Princess Kawannakoa, the Misses Bradley and E. M. Watson, had a rough experience with the surf, which came in in surging battalions. A big one caught the canoe, quartering and turned it over. There was a great splashing and the successive waves played a merry game of tag with the floundering boat and its former occupants. After a prolonged struggle, the boat was righted and baled out.

Parke, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. W. E. Wall, Mrs. A. F. Wall and Miss Hoare.

WAILUA INQUEST.

High Sheriff Brown has received the following verdict of the inquest held over Sato Gintaro, the Japanese who was killed at Wailua a short time ago:

"That said Sato Gintaro came to his death at Wailua on May 20 caused by fracture of skull, received by being struck with a piece of wood on his head from unknown person or persons, on the night of May 9, 1904."

That Earthquake Still Is Rumbling

Kalae, Molokai, June 6.—Earthquakes on Molokai are so infrequent that they create a sensation when they do arrive. I have felt two considerable disturbances on this island, and both have been a decided shaking up, not at all like the rocking movement I have experienced elsewhere. The first of these quakes was over a year ago; the last, on Saturday, June 4th. Saturday's quake seemed heavier, but at the same time did not rattle my furniture so noisily.

The Kalae teacher reports: "I was sitting on the veranda initiating two of my scholars in the intricacies of a needlework stitch when I felt a gentle shaking; the movement apparently far distant. I took no notice, hoping the girls would remain in ignorance, but the shaking grew stronger and they became white and shaky too."

The second shock came after a pause; it was very much stronger and nearer than the first, eventually dying off in the distance. The time was about 12:25. The shock was felt similarly at Kualapuu, Kalae ranch, and at Palaua. At the latter place J. C. Munro reports that he "heard it coming," which seems to agree with the teacher's feeling of "distance." The shock was quite lengthy in duration.

Militia Strike Tents After Grand Review

Tents were struck at Kapiolani park last evening and the encampment of the First Regiment, National Guard of Hawaii, was terminated, except that of the Wailuku and Hilo companies.

Acting Governor Atkinson yesterday morning reviewed the troops which were in line divided to represent three regiments; the first, composed of militia and Federal artillery companies, was commanded by Lieut. Trotter, A. C. U. S. A., the second by Lieut. Col. Zeigler, N. G. H., and the third by Major or Wall, N. G. H. Troops were drawn up on the race track. Col. Jones, 1st Regiment, N. G. H., was brigade commander; Captain Nichols, A. C. U. S. A., commander of this artillery district, tendered the review to the Acting Governor who was accompanied by Col. Soper and Major Pratt, N. G. H., and Captain Nichols and Lieut. Sypher, U. S. A., Samuel Parker and George Beckley. In the evening, headed by the band, the militia marched in to town.

Col. Jones expresses himself as well satisfied with the encampment. The Wailuku company leaves on the Likelike for Maui today; the Hilo company goes home in tomorrow's Kinan.
